

Head Of American Legion Killed In Auto Accident

F. W. Galbraith, Jr., in Automobile When It Falls Over Embankment.

TWO OTHER MEN INJURED

Harding Sends Message of Condolence to Widow of Dead War Hero.

By United Press Leased Wire
Indianapolis, Ind.—Frederick W. Galbraith, Jr., national commander of the American Legion, was killed almost instantly here early Thursday when he rode an automobile over a fifteen foot embankment.

Milton J. Foreman, national legion committee man from Illinois, was seriously injured, and Henry J. Ryan, chairman of the legion's Americanization committee, was less seriously injured.

Ryan owned the car and grief over Galbraith's death and Foreman's injuries threw him into nervous prostration. This together with the injuries he received may make his condition serious. It was said at the city hospital where he and Foreman are being treated.

The men were riding from the Country club to the union station where Galbraith and Foreman were to have caught the 12:30 train for Chicago. Ryan told the police he was driving at a speed of 22 miles an hour.

Indianapolis, Ind.—High military honors will be paid Colonel Frederick W. Galbraith, national commander of the American Legion, who was killed in an automobile accident here early Thursday.

Major General George W. Reed, commander of the Fifth army corps area with headquarters at Fort Benjamin Harrison, his staff, national and state officers of the legion and every legionnaire in Indianapolis will escort the body to the union station.

It will be taken to Cincinnati, the Galbraith home on a train leaving here at 6 o'clock.

He was unfamiliar with the street and failed to make a sudden turn at Sixteenth and Indiana-ave. The automobile ran up over the curb and toppled over the embankment, turning on its side at the bottom.

All three men were thrown clear of the car. Galbraith's head struck a rock and it is thought a fracture of the skull caused his death.

A number of Negroes going home from work, passed the place shortly after the accident and they said Ryan completely lost control of himself when he learned of Galbraith's death. It was necessary for some of their party to hold him, they said.

Machinery Faulty

Ryan said he slowed down when he saw the turn ahead, but he thought the steering wheel failed to function. He said he had some trouble with it a few days ago, but that it had been all right since then.

Galbraith was elected commander of the legion at the Cleveland convention last September. During the war he was named as colonel and won the name of "The fighting colonel of the fighting First." He was assigned to command the 147th infantry in January 1917, and remained in command of it throughout the war. He personally led his regiment through the German lines in 1918. Colonel Galbraith was born in Watertown, Mass., on May 6, 1874, and at the time of his death was president of the Western Paper Goods company of Cincinnati.

Well Known Orator

"Sailor" Ryan became known as "The silver tongued orator of the navy," when the Red Cross called for liberty loan speakers. After he had spoken throughout the country in the government's drive for money, he directed his efforts toward putting down the radical propaganda which sprang up in the shipyards and other industrial centers during the close of the war. He first tried to enlist in the army, but weak eyes prevented this and navy permitted him to do shore duty. Following his discharge from the navy, Ryan was named chairman of the Americanization commission and through his efforts it became compulsory for private and public schools to teach American history and civics.

Colonel Foreman, a wealthy Chicago lawyer, served with distinction in France. He commanded the 122nd field artillery. Although over the age limit, he worked actively with the American forces overseas.

Harding Sends Message

Washington.—President Harding Thursday sent a message of sympathy to Mrs. F. W. Galbraith, Jr., widow of the commander of the American Legion, killed in an automobile accident.

The message follows:

"Please know that you have my sympathy in the great and sudden sorrow which has come to you. It was my fortune to know Colonel Galbraith, not alone as the national commander of the American Legion, but as a fellow citizen of Ohio and as a highly valued his commanding personality, his tireless zeal, and his intense devotion to his country and his companions in arms. The legion and the nation share with the great loss which has come so suddenly."

CHARGE WESTERN LUMBERMEN WITH PRICE COLLUSION

Federal Trade Commission Complains of Alleged Illegal Combination.

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington—Charges of price collusion and restriction of production to maintain prices were made against the West Coast Lumbermen's association by the federal trade commission in a special report to congress Thursday.

Canadian lumbermen were taken into the fold in 1919, when they threatened price increases in this country by planning to ship Canadian logs, the report stated, and it further charged that prices today are at high levels.

The report explains that the association is made up of lumbermen and loggers in what is known as the Douglas fir region in the Pacific northwest.

The commission said between 1915 and 1920 wholesale quotations on fir lumber increased 300 to 500 per cent and that despite recent reductions some prices are still at the level of May and June, 1919, and others are at the level they were in the spring of 1917.

FIGHT OVER CHOICE OF ORTHWEIN JURY

By United Press Leased Wire
Chicago.—Bitter battles of opposing counsel continued Thursday as the Orthwein murder trial started on its second day.

Four jurors who will decide the fate of Mrs. C. Orthwein, charged with the murder of Herbert P. Zeigler, Goodyear Tire and Rubber company sales manager, have been chosen.

Lloyd Heth, prosecutor, is attempting to get a jury of middle aged men who never frequented cabarets while Ben Short, attorney for Mrs. Orthwein, wants a jury composed of more or less "convivial spirits."

Mrs. Orthwein is charged with slaying Zeigler in her apartment because of jealousy over Mrs. Charlotte Lewinsky, the "kissing blonde" in the case who is said to have supplanted Mrs. Orthwein in Zeigler's affection.

Mrs. Orthwein stated that she killed the man with whom she had been living in self defense.

SENATE WILL HELP VETERANS GET HELP

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington.—The senate Thursday passed a resolution by Senator Walsh, Massachusetts, ordering an immediate investigation of governmental agencies engaged in veterans' relief work.

"Complaints over the treatment they were receiving and reports of delays in getting their claims adjusted pour into my office from ex-service men," said Senator Walsh in urging the adoption of his resolution.

Walsh declared that the situation regarding the ex-service men must be remedied if their confidence in the government is to be restored.

Senator Smoot declared that congress had appropriated sufficient money to take care of the ex-service men but said that it had been badly administered.

Teachers Exams

Regular examinations for the renewal of second and third grade teachers' certificates were held Thursday in County Superintendent A. G. Meisinger's office. Six young women and one man took the tests.

Can't Afford To Pay Peggy $10,000 A Month Alimony

By United Press Leased Wire
Chicago.—Mr. Peggy, III, is only worth $2,935.188.66 and cannot afford to pay his wife the $10,000 a month alimony she demands.

J. Stanley Joyce, third millionaire husband of Peggy Joyce, show girl, told this to Judge Joseph Sabath when he took the stand in the case involving his domestic smash Thursday.

Joyce came out of hiding of several weeks to appear in court. His seclusion followed Peggy's counter-attacks on him after he had petitioned for a divorce.

Weymouth Kirkland, Peggy's attorney, questioned Joyce and branded him as a "don't recall" witness when he didn't remember certain of his assets.

Joyce is expected to tell the court later Thursday that Peggy, a country barber's daughter from Farmville, Va., has no right to expect $10,000 alimony. It would take much less for her to "live in the style she was accustomed to," before she met him, Joyce believes.

In answer to this, Peggy, who will probably be called into court, is expected to put on the "you made me what I am today" record, saying that Joyce made her extravagant and it therefore takes a lot of money for her to get by these days.

The public was first taken into the secret of J. Stanley and Peggy when he asked for annulment of their marriage. He charged her with being a bigamist and also with that she had some of the following on both sides of the ocean as convivial associates:

A prince, army officer, duke, bartender, publisher, several bon vivants and a confidence man or two.

"I've been a good wife—faithful and true," Peggy has answered.

FIND NEW CLEWS IN INSURANCE MURDER

Decker Tells Girl He Didn't Kill Pal, But Knows Who Did.

By United Press Leased Wire
Warsaw, Ind.—Little Carrie Eggleston, the 15-year-old sweetheart of Virgil Decker, may be called to the witness stand in the boy's murder trial again to testify regarding a whispered conversation between them in the courtroom during a recess the other day.

"I didn't kill Leroy Lovett, but I'm afraid to tell who it was," Virgil is said to have told the girl.

"They left me to get rid of the body."

Prosecuting attorneys refused to say whether this would be placed before the jury. They learned of it from a farmer who said he overheard the conversation and hurriedly made inquiries of officers at Elkhart where Carrie lives.

The state directed its efforts in the trial Thursday to proving Virgil did not act under duress when he signed several statements assuming full responsibility for the crime. The statements were introduced as evidence over the objections of Virgil's attorneys who said he was forced to make them. Witnesses were called to testify for the prosecution.

The state was to close its case late Thursday and give way to defense attorneys who have summoned several witnesses to prove the insanity of their 18-year-old client.

BANDIT BAND ADMITS MORE THAN 100 CRIMES

Chicago.—Police Thursday ended the career of a bandit band that has committed over 100 robberies in the last few months.

John J. Janock, 26, was shot and killed and Mike Onozowski, 28, fatally wounded by police during an attempted holdup. Two other members of the band, Jack Piech, 19, and Joseph Gerbino, 26, who were captured, confessed to over 100 other crimes, among which was shooting a woman and a baby during a holdup.

"Let me have some sleep and I will show you that Jesse James' record is only a supplement to ours," said Piech.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Meighan of Green Bay visited in this city Wednesday.

TEACHER PENSION TO BE PAID BY TAX ON $3,000 INCOMES

State Assembly Favorable to Conventions to Supplement Primaries.

By United Press Leased Wire
Madison—A million dollar boost in income taxes on incomes above $3,000 will finance the teachers' retirement pension fund if the assembly concurs in amendment attached to the bill by the senate Thursday.

Incomes above $3,000 must pay an additional one-eighth tax to provide funds for the state's share in the expense of making the pension fund solvent.

The amendment is expected to be acceptable to the assembly where a surtax feature was added to the bill. The tax commission estimated the income tax boost would net the fund $1,200,000 this year, and approximately $900,000 next year.

Teachers drawing $3,000 and more will be paid pensions out of the fund based on earnings of not more than $3,000, one amendment provided.

The assembly went on record Thursday in favor of the party convention as supplemental to the present primary election machinery. The Ingalls bill providing for a party convention was passed by a vote of 48 to 40. It now goes to the senate where its chances for passage are said to be good. The approval of the governor should the measure pass, is doubtful.

The party convention could nominate a majority and minority candidate for the state elective offices only, under the provisions of the bill.

The advocates of the measure said it would reestablish party lines in the state.

Opponents charged it was an attempt to emasculate the primaries.

The Peterson bill compelling public utilities to put aside profits in excess of 8 per cent for the purpose of relieving bonds, was passed by the assembly and goes to the senate for concurrence.

WANT FOUR CHANGES IN BLAINE DRY BILL

By United Press Leased Wire
Madison—Governor John J. Blaine's dry enforcement bill, replacing the vetoed Matheson bill, Thursday was made a special order of business in the senate for Friday.

The Wisconsin Anti-Saloon league will offer four amendments to the measure, officials of the league said Thursday.

Two are of major importance and two are to clarify certain sections of the bill, they said.

An amendment striking out the section of the bill permitting the manufacture of home brew and home wine not for sale, will be the subject of controversy. League officials charge this section was looked upon with favor by liquor interests.

The second amendment would prevent minors from procuring liquor on prescription unless the purchaser is accompanied by parent or guardian. It understood administration officials will offer no objection to this amendment.

Attorney General William J. Morgan's office will give an opinion of the validity of certain sections of the bill Friday.

CATHOLIC WOMEN SWING HAMMER ON BADGER U.

By United Press Leased Wire
Green Bay, Wis.—William Jennings Bryan, when he said that man did not descend from the lower animals, in a recent address at the University of Wisconsin at Madison, started something.

Resolutions were adopted at the annual meeting of the state conference of Catholic Women's organizations here Wednesday, scoring members of the university faculty for comments on the address, published in the "Daily Cardinal," university paper.

Teachings and comments from leading faculty members, including President E. A. Birge, are held by the women to be in direct opposition to the views of Christian citizenship and a contravention of the spirit and intent of the federal constitution, in that they inject religion into the work of a state institution. The women resolved to use every means within their power to eradicate such teachings from Wisconsin state institutions.

SIMS MAY LOSE JOB BECAUSE OF SHARP TONGUE

Senate Orders Investigation of American's Anti-Sinn Fein Speech.

ADMIRAL IS STANDING PAT

Storm Center of Navy Refuses to Back Down on His Declarations.

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington—Immediate investigation of the speech of Admiral William S. Sims in London, was ordered by the senate Thursday.

Without objection the senate adopted a resolution by Senator Pat Harrison, Mississippi, a Democrat, directing the committee to make a thorough investigation and to report with recommendations as to what the senate should do about it.

The resolution quoted the published portion of Sims' speech in which he was said to have referred to some persons in the United States as "Sinn Feiners," "zebrus" and "asses."

Admiral Stands Pat

London.—"I have no reason to be here I was misquoted in cable accounts of my speech before the English Speaking union," Admiral William S. Sims told the United Press Thursday.

Sims said he had not received the cable sent by Secretary Denby asking if the anti-Sinn Fein quotations were correct.

"I presume Irish politicians in the United States are trying to stir up trouble," he said.

Sims said he could not comment on the secretary's action in cabling him. He did not appear greatly worried over the responsibility of a reprinting.

"I said nothing that I have not said dozens of times in the United States and in my book," he declared.

MAY COST HIS JOB

Washington.—The future of Admiral William S. Sims in the American navy was believed to hinge Thursday on the reply he makes to Secretary Denby's inquiry on Sims' anti-Sinn Fein speech in London.

If Sims can repudiate press reports of his speech it was assumed the matter will be dropped but if the accuracy of the accounts is admitted, Denby, it was said, is prepared to take summary action.

President Harding is being urged to act also.

There was a strong belief that Sims' latest "indiscretion" might threaten his career in the navy. For years the admiral has been a record as an "insurgent" and he has been reprimanded by secretaries and presidents. Some fellow officers criticized his latest utterance because it was made in London and the admiral has had the reputation of being strongly pro-British. He, himself, has laughingly pointed out that he was described as "the best British admiral in the American navy."

What Sims Said

Denby asked Sims to state whether the following extract from his speech quoted him correctly:

"There are many in our country who (certainly) are Americans, naturalized and born there, but none of them Americans at all. They are American when they want money; they are making war on America today. The simple truth of it is that they have the blood of English and American boys on their hands."

"They are like zebrus, either black with white stripes or white with black stripes. But we know they are not horses—they are asses. But each of these asses have a vote and there are a lot of them."

AIR SERVICE HEAD WANTS AIDE FIRED

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington.—Major General Menoher, chief of the army air service, has asked Secretary of War Weeks to relieve Brig. Gen. William Mitchell, assistant chief of the service, it was learned Thursday.

General Menoher's request is the result of differences of opinion with Mitchell which have caused friction in the army air service. Secretary Weeks himself Thursday made known an instance of this friction and the fact that General Menoher had asked him to relieve Mitchell.

Weeks, however, stated emphatically that he was going into the question personally and would see that the cause of the friction is removed.

Weeks said he had not yet acted on Menoher's request for Mitchell's release.

EXCURSION BOAT STRIKES SAND BAR

By United Press Leased Wire
Wabasha, Minn.—Nearly 800 excursionists, stuck on a sand bar in the Mississippi off Alma, Wis., for ten hours, were brought here Thursday on another boat. They were passengers on the steamer Majestic. The W. J. Mayo steamer Minnesota was taking off passengers and brought the first load here at 10 a. m.

The Majestic made its first trip on the upper Mississippi last night, taking off excursionists from Lake City and Wabasha.

About 11 p. m. the steamer struck fast on a sand bar off Alma and every effort to dislodge her failed.

Passenger bought up the ship's store of food and candy long before daylight and the water supply ran low. As soon as the passengers are unloaded it is believed the steamer will float herself free. She is a four decker with a capacity of 3,000 passengers. She was less than a third loaded Wednesday night.

Mayor J. A. Hawes has issued a proclamation asking all mills, factories and business houses to suspend work at noon so their employees can take part in the services. Every civic, religious, fraternal and patriotic organization has been notified to have its members in readiness to march in the funeral procession. These organizations are to communicate with L. Marchers will be lined up four abreast and as they reach Riverside cemetery two lines will go to the Jahnke burial plot and the other two will continue on to St. Joseph cemetery where Lang's body is to be interred. The hearse containing the bodies will be abreast of each other in the procession. Services will be held simultaneously in Riverside and St. Joseph cemeteries.

Flags at Halfmast

Flags are to be placed at half mast beginning at 8 o'clock Friday morning and are to continue in that position until after the funeral on Monday, officers of the legion announced.

Preparations for the public funeral were started several weeks ago by the Oney Johnston post of the legion. It was decided to hold the funeral over the first body to be returned from France. The purpose is to pay tribute to the memories of all Appleton and Outagamie county men who lost their lives in the World war. F. H. Bellow, chairman of the funeral committee of the Oney Johnston post, has charge of the arrangements.

Money Scarcity Deflates Prices

New Price Cutting Movement Is Gaining Impetus in All Parts of Country.

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington.—A new series of reductions in prices of all commodities is beginning in nearly every section of the country, James McCoy, of the treasury department, said Thursday.

The nationwide price cutting wave which began just about a year ago had slowed during the last few months. Now price cutting is to be resumed on a new and faster scale, it is indicated by factors considered important.

One of these factors is an unusually big drop in the per capita circulation of money. In the month ended June 1, the per capita circulation fell off 18 cents to $55.44 a person, according to an announcement by the treasury.

"This shows conclusively that prices are falling," said McCoy.

"It means that money is getting harder to obtain because there is less of it to be had. When you have to work harder to get money, it is worth more and will buy more. During the war money was inflated, plentiful and easy to obtain—that is, comparative. That is what made all prices soar. Now that we are being deflated the converse becomes true."

BANDIT KILLS TWO POLICEMEN IN FIGHT

By United Press Leased Wire
Tokio, Ohio.—Machine guns, rifles, pistols and sulphur bombs were used by the police here Thursday in getting James Edward Kelly, a waiter, who had killed Patrolman Harry Dowell and Harold Mossberger, and who, barricaded in the attic of the house in which he lived, held off almost the entire police department for hours.

After the machine guns had been brought into play, the house at 611 Walnut street, near the business district, was rushed and Kelly, with both his guns loaded, was found lying across a cot dead. He had been hit twice.

Kelly flourished a revolver and announced that no policeman would take him alive, when Mrs. Nellie Key tried to collect $75 which the man owed her for room rent.

COUNTY BOARD IS UPHOLD IN KILLING COURT AT SEYMOUR

Judge Werner Sustains Abolition of Special Municipal Court.

Following a hearing in circuit court Wednesday Judge E. V. Werner sustained the action of the Outagamie county board in abolishing the office of special municipal judge and for holding the county treasurer to pay the judge's salary.

Outagamie county special municipal court was the first special municipal court established under the state law. This court was established in 1916 and was supposed to sit in Seymour, Black Creek, Bear Creek and Shawano. Ellsworth C. Smith was elected judge and served until Dec. 10, 1917, when the county board abolished the court and issued an order forbidding the county treasurer to pay a salary to the judge.

A writ of certiorari was then issued by Judge Smith, demanding that the board show by what authority it abolished the court. When the case came before the circuit court yesterday, the former municipal judge was prepared to present the records of the county board proceedings wherein it abolished the court. These were carefully examined.

In giving his decision, Judge Werner said he was of the opinion that the county board had not exceeded its authority and that its action should stand. He upheld the board and quashed Smith's writ of certiorari.

MENASHA-NEENAH NEWS

EAGLES REELECT STATE OFFICERS

Jabber Jung Whips Dempsey in Fistic Bout—Kaukauna Man Wins.

Menasha—Jabber Jung of Menasha, outpointed Rev. Dempsey of Milwaukee in a ten round warup of the Elks having card Thursday night. Chuck Remick of Menasha and Eddie Benz of Milwaukee fought ten rounds to a draw in the semi-warup. Jack Zwack of Kaukauna knocked out Fritz Johnson of Neenah in the first round. Eddie Bump of Libertyville and Willie Lewis of Chicago fought four rounds to a draw in the curtain rouser.

Jung's bout was the best of the card. Dempsey although a willing fighter, was not fast enough for the local fighter. Dempsey did not land solid wallops on Jabber's face but put in a few body punches during the ten rounds.

The Remick-Benz bout was slow and nothing sensational happened during the ten rounds of milking.

Johnson of Neenah suffered a sudden attack of cold feet after about two minutes and laid down until Dauber Jaeger counted him out. The curtain rouser proved to be a four-round comedy. Lewis and Bump fighting to a draw. The Elks put on the card and gave a percentage of the receipts to the Eagles convention fund but the show was poorly supported by the Eagles.

Too Cold A 3:30 A.M. For Plunge In Chilly Fox

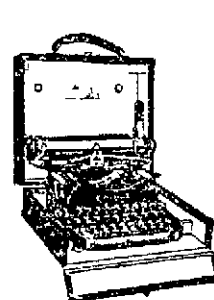

B-r-r-r! Never again will two well known local taxi drivers dare one another to take a swim at 3:30 in the morning.

Thinking it would be a nice lark, one dared the other. The challenge was accepted and both went to the river in an automobile, disrobed and plunged in. The incident happened two nights ago when the night air was so frosty one could see his breath.

Only a brief splash—just enough to say that neither refused to stand by his dare—and the pair hurried back to the warmth of the livery office. It is said that neither waited to dress because it was too cold. They put on only enough clothes to cover them up and speeded back to shelter.

HARDING'S VIEWS SHOULD GOVERN

The differences between the house and the senate over the disarmament resolutions ought not to stand in the way of definite and prompt action in this important matter. The senate resolution, which is embodied in the Borah amendment to the naval bill, proposes a conference between Great Britain, Japan and the United States to consider a reduction of armaments. The house idea seems to be expressed in the Porter resolution, which leaves in the hands of President Harding the question of calling an international conference and of inviting what nations he pleases.

There is something to be said on both sides. So far as disarmament relates to the naval field, and this is primarily the field where reduction must be had, initiative, and in fact almost the exclusive action, must be taken by Great Britain, Japan and the United States. There are no other naval powers in the world today but these, and their prestige is sufficient to force the lesser powers to agree to any program they may agree upon. Aside from this there is the further fact that all nations will undoubtedly seize with avidity any opportunity to relieve themselves of the burdens imposed by military establishments. Naval disarmament, therefore, hinges on what these three powers do, and it would be unnecessary if this were the sole object to be attained to invite any other nations into the preliminary conference.

However, there is also land armament to be considered, and with this many nations that would necessarily have to be consulted are concerned. In a program which contemplated general disarmament, France and Italy would certainly have to be included, and ultimately Germany and Russia and certain other European countries would be embraced in action of this character, because their large standing armies are not only a potential source of war between themselves, but of international conflict that might again get beyond control. On the whole we are inclined to think the house view is probably the correct view. There is also reason to believe that it reflects the attitude of the administration, and if that is so it should be accepted by the senate if for no other reason than to promote accord on this great question. It is a step in which the president must necessarily take the lead.

Any resolution which congress may adopt is merely an approach to the question. It will still remain for the president to call the conference, to shape the American policy and to obtain results. The president is, of course, in close touch with the international situation and is advised of the best procedure. He undoubtedly has information as to the views of the British and Japanese governments, as well as of other governments.

President Harding and Secretary Hughes may be depended upon to handle this delicate subject in an adroit and successful manner. It is a case where executive rather than congressional judgment, as to the best methods to be adopted, should prevail. Whatever the president desires in the premises should govern. If he prefers the Porter resolution in the house, as it is unofficially stated he does, this resolution should be adopted.

ON MR. THOMPSON'S TRAIL

The whole country is concerned in the great victory won by the coalition forces in Chicago for the redemption of the judiciary from the evil control of the Thompson-Lundin machine. In the last several weeks the press of Chicago has waged an uncompromising fight against graft and corrupt politics. It has called Mayor Thompson and his organization as black a spade as was ever painted in municipal government. It has undertaken to expose viciousness in many branches of city administration, from engineering and bridge construction to police and executive management.

The Thompson machine has achieved a notoriety in recent years second only to that of Tammany in New York City. Mr. Thompson's unenviable record commenced with his hostility toward the national government in the war against Germany and in our association with the allies. It was Thompson who referred to Chicago as the "sixth German city of the world," and who affronted representatives of the allies who visited the United States. The country generally placed him in the class with La Follette, but in spite of his offensive acts, he retained his hold on the politics of Chicago. Efforts to defeat him since the war have proved unavailing because the good government forces could not be united to oppose him.

Affairs in Chicago have continued to go from bad to worse until crime, vice and graft appear to have reached the point where decency revolted. The newspapers rallied the self-respecting people of Chicago under one banner in the judicial elections just held, with the result that the Thompson-Lundin outfit was routed, bag and baggage. The machine had in the field twenty-one candidates for judges, and every one of them was beaten. Had this slate been elected Chicago would have been helpless. It would have been plundered without mercy. The Coalition ticket elected every candidate for judge and gave the Thompson-Lundin machine the worst beating of its life.

But decency in Chicago must not deceive itself. The Thompson gang is not put out of business by this election. It will come back stronger than ever if left to its devices, or if the forces of good government weaken and do not remain united. Chicago has a huge problem on its hands, and that problem is to get rid of Thompson and the machine which is working with him. What Chicago has submitted to in the last few years has had a bad influence in politics generally. It has encouraged grafters and exploiters and radicals in every part of the country. It has emboldened disloyalists. It has tainted politics in Illinois and adjoining states. The country wants to see Chicago redeem itself from the Thompson-Lundin machine, and it rejoices at the start which has been made. Its hope is that the fight will be kept up until the victory is complete.

THE TERMS TO MEXICO

Secretary Hughes' clear and concise statement of the Mexican situation paves the way for a restoration of relations between Mexico and the United States, provided only Mexico is prepared to do her duty. Mr. Hughes, in effect, wants a treaty understanding with Mexico which will guarantee American property rights and titles in that country lawfully acquired. That is the basis on which he proposes to President Obregon a restoration of political and commercial intercourse.

The constitution of 1917, revolutionary in many of its aspects, would, if applied in the spirit of its ordinary interpretation, confiscate, as Mr. Hughes points out, American properties on a vast scale. It would be an "international wrong of the gravest character," and this government could not "submit to its accomplishment." Mr. Hughes insists upon adequate guarantees by Mexico that the constitution of 1917 will not be "construed to permit, or enforced so as to effect, confiscation." He demands that the exact purpose of Mexico under the change of this organic law be definitely set forth.

The American government is wholly within its rights in laying down these terms of recognition to President Obregon. They constitute primary international obligations without the discharge of which trade or any other relations are impossible. They are the foundations on which intercourse between nations rests just as the civil rights guaranteed by the constitution of the United States are essential to the functioning of this government.

Mr. Hughes is not disposed to go back and rake over grievances against Mexico which may be considered closed and for which no real remedy exists at this time. All he proposes is that the slate be made clean and that Mexico start over with a definite promise to respect American rights and property legally acquired prior to 1917, as well as those which may have been acquired since under the constitution of that year. His statement is a warning as well as an opening to President Obregon and the Mexican nation. It offers an honorable and sound basis for restoring friendly relations, and it at the same time serves notice that if our proposals are not accepted there can be no hope of recognition of any government in Mexico by the United States.

We are not applying the doctrine of force to Mexico, and there is no thought of intervention. We have simply put it up to Mexico to do the square thing. She has her future in her own hands and we can afford to wait for her to come to her senses much better than she can herself. The probability is, of course, that President Obregon will accept Mr. Hughes' terms and that in the near future there will be recognition and we shall renew our dealings with Mexico.

THE ASEPTIC LIFE

A correspondent makes this allusion to a letter I sent him concerning coryza:

"Your letter gives detailed instructions what to do when a person has already contracted the infection, but unless I am unduly thick there is nothing in it explaining how to prevent the inception of the infection. To my mind the important part of the whole problem is to be able to prevent the germs from taking hold. I want to know what to do to kill the brutes every night after the exposures which one has to encounter each day in traveling about and meeting people in business."

Everybody wants to know that, not only in the case of respiratory infections (which are responsible for the majority of everyday ills) but also as regards every other infectious or communicable disease.

Have we any germ-discouraging, antiseptic or germ-killing substance which will fill this want?

I do not believe in, and would not personally practice or prescribe the use of any spray, gargle, wash or frigation of the nasal passages or throat in the expectation of preventing the consummation of infections to which one has been exposed. But I do believe in and would personally employ and prescribe such agents in the treatment of some of the infections in which the nasal lining or throat is involved. My personal opinion is given for what it may or may not be worth. Some thoroughly competent physicians do recommend the use of sprays for the nasal passages and gargles for the throat, with a view to preventing respiratory infections such as meningitis, infantile paralysis, diphtheria and coryza.

In the course of the pandemic of influenza many troops awaiting embarkation at a military post were infected. The surgeon in charge of one of many companies there carried out very strict prophylaxis of this kind, personally attending morning and evening to see that every man carefully sprayed his nasal passages and gargled with diluted Dobell's solution. It was a striking fact that no man in this company developed influenza at the post, whereas no other company escaped pretty general infection. That is the strongest evidence I have met with.

The extreme difficulty commonly experienced in freeing the throat from diphtheria bacilli in cases of "carriers" indicates how innocuous to disease germs is the gargle or spray or other medication which can be employed without injuring the patient. The reason why I am personally not an advocate of such measures is that I think we may injure the lining of the nose or throat by our antiseptic or germicidal medications and so actually open the way for infection which would otherwise have been warded off by the natural resistance and the germicidal secretions of the unimpaired nose or throat linings. For the same reason I do not recommend the use of antiseptic or germ-destroying dentifrices. It is generally known that one with a fever or a disease may be not only unimpaired, but actually benefited by remedies which would perhaps do harm to a normal person—such as prolonged bed rest in the treatment of lung tuberculosis in the active stage.

The way to prevent respiratory infections is just what I have harped on constantly—keep outside of the five-foot barrage of the person who has, has just had or is coming down with an alleged "cold."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Leakage of the Heart

What causes leakage of the heart? Is it dangerous? Can it be cured? Is digitalis good for one with leakage of the heart to take? (E. W.)

ANSWER—You probably mean leakage of a heart valve, not leakage of the heart. A valve may be left in a rough or distorted state after inflammation, and the inflammation of the valve is generally produced by germs lodging on the heart lining as they are carried in the circulation from some such source as infected tonsils or some other focus of infection. This may occur in the course of an apparently mild tonsillitis, and does not cause any pain about the heart, but is one reason why persons with mild "sore throat" or "simple cold," as they imagine, should remain in bed for a day or two. The roughened or distorted valve fails to close perfectly, and so there is a certain amount of back-flow or "leakage" with each beat of the heart. It is not dangerous; with reasonable care one may live a fairly active life. There is of course no treatment which will remove scar, aside from surgery, which is impossible in this situation. Digitalis is sometimes employed, for a limited period, in treating loss of efficiency in valvular disease; it would be a very dangerous drug for a layman to trifle with.

Studying The Sun

By Frederic J. Haskin

Washington, D. C.—One of the loneliest scientific jobs in the world is that of the two men representing the Smithsonian Institution who spend all of their time at the new solar observatory which has just been established on Mt. Harqua in Arizona.

Haskin

It is the same observatory which has been located for so many years on Mt. Wilson in California, and was removed to Arizona because the scientists there have a greater number of days clear enough for the study of solar radiation.

The nearest neighbor to this new scientific outpost is a prospector, and he is a mile away. His three burros furnish the only transportation which can reach the observatory. The little town of Wenden is 16 miles away and several thousand feet below. The scientists order their groceries once in two weeks by signaling with heliograph—that is with flashes of sunlight thrown by a mirror—using the Morse code.

In addition to this observatory in Arizona, the Smithsonian Institution now maintains another one in the Chilean Andes, about eight miles from the town of Calama, and 9,500 feet above sea level. This also was established in its present location within the last year. It is said to be the best place in the world for the observation of solar radiation, because the sky is clear on 80 per cent of the days. In the Arizona location it is clear on about 70 per cent of the days.

From these two stations the scientists expect to gain most important information concerning solar radiation, and especially concerning its effect upon the weather. It seems to have been established that the amount of heat which the sun gives off varies from time to time, and there is a strong presumption that by studying these variations, changes in the weather can be predicted with a new certainty, and perhaps much farther in advance than now.

The World's Power Plant.

This study of the sun is not, however, undertaken solely for the purpose of improving our method of forecasting the weather. It is a general investigation of the activities of the sun. If you are a practical-minded person who sees little use in any scientific investigation that has not an immediate practical application, you may consider that these scientists on their remote mountain tops are engineers removing the central heating plant which operates the world.

No one knows much about that great heating plant, which furnishes the world with light and power. During the comparatively brief period of which men have any record, it has proved fairly satisfactory. With minor variations, it has delivered always about the same amount of heat at the same time of the year at the same place, so that men could plant their crops with a reasonably good chance of harvesting them. Yet there is plain geological evidence that the climate of the earth has varied in a terrible way during the past few million years. There have been two long periods in which it grew much colder, so that a large part of the earth was covered with ice. This has been explained by the scientists on the ground that the earth shifted in its orbit so that it received less heat from the sun.

The point is that the sun is not the reliable thing you imagine it to be. It is nothing but a great hot coal, slowly burning itself out. At least, it must be burning itself out, and the scientists assume that ultimately it will burn out entirely, leaving us in the dark and cold, unless it collides with some other body, thus getting a new supply of fuel. Then it might get too hot and fry us all.

These little contingencies are all a few trillion years in the future, and are nothing to worry about. But nevertheless the sun is supremely worth studying right now. If an intelligent being could come here from another planet, he would probably wonder that we spent such an enormous amount of money inventing guns and gases with which to get ourselves killed, and so little money in studying the sun, upon which our lives depend.

The Mysterious Sun Spot.

For one thing, there are sun spots. These are cloudy places over the sun, cutting off some of its light and heat from us, which are believed by scientists to be due to the collection of gases at certain points. It is believed that the sun spots have a marked effect upon the earth in some way. For example, the aurora borealis, which recently got so much publicity, occurs in connection with sun spots and is believed to be caused by them. It is an electrical phenomenon. The recent display of the aurora charged the air so heavily that telegraphs and cables were affected, and many believed that human beings were affected, too. It is quite possible that the sun spots have a good deal to do with the way you feel on a given morning. It may be that when science has studied the matter adequately, all human activities will be regulated largely in accordance with the condition of the sun spots. Some years ago a scientist attracted a good deal of attention by claiming that he could predict the price of wheat by the sun spots.

Meantime, the weather bureau states that it cannot trace any connection between the sun spots and the weather. It admits that sun spots have something to do with the aurora and terrestrial magnetism, but says, "the nature of these relations is complex and more or less unknown."

The last word no doubt sums up the situation. The sun, by whose light and heat alone man lives his little moment, is a terrible mystery to him. He does not know what it may do to him. But meantime he calmly scrutinizes it and impudently tries to hitch it up and make it work. During his residence at the Mt. Wilson observatory, Dr. Abbott made a sun heat cooker. He concentrated the rays by means of a parabolic mirror, and so baked meats and bread without the use of fuel.

Perhaps the scientist on his mountain top, studying the sun through his telescope, while it cooks his dinner for him, is an outpost in more senses than one. He is an outpost of the future when man will understand far more of the universe in which he lives, and will control it for his own benefit.

There's a difference between a bare possibility and a naked truth

It's barely possible that at some exclusive watering place north of Montreal you will find the same comfort that awaits you here.

But it's a naked truth that you will have to take your bathing suit along and stay in the water all day if you hope to have as good a time as you can have right here at home in street clothes—if you let us help you select them.

Appleton Gets Overflow From Eagle Convention
Appleton has been taking care of the overflow from the state convention of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, which is in progress at Menasha. A carload of delegates came over bright and early Thursday morning and invaded local barbershops to obtain a shave. The shops in Menasha had more than they could handle.
Others were unable to find satisfactory restaurant facilities in Menasha, so have been coming to local establishments for meals. The hotels here also have accommodated many of the delegates. Some of the visitors are staying with Appleton friends, and spend only enough time in Menasha to attend the convention sessions.

Pliny Earl of Laona, Forest co., who left Appleton 20 years ago, is visiting friends here for the first time in eight years. He is accompanied by his son, and brother Oriu with whom he is engaged in logging business. Mr. Earl says there is nothing doing in the woods this summer owing the bottom having dropped out of the wholesale price of lumber.

Mr. and Mrs. Gaffney of Racine, visited friends here Wednesday.

Confessions of a Bride
(Copyright 1920)
THE BOOK OF MARTHA
Martha Shrinks From Love-Shush
The gossip about Arthur Mansfield had a startling effect upon Martha. She turned her happiest smile upon me and a little thrill of joy rang in her voice.
"I've heard the story, and I guess it's all true! Didn't I tell you that he is the finest man in the wide, wide world?"
Intuitively, I surmised the secret of my friends' rapture. She was glad because he recent caller had buried his heart long ago in the grave of a girl! She was glad because—because Arthur Mansfield ran no danger of falling in love with any living woman! Then—why then—she must be in love with the man! Very much in love, I decided, but I couldn't hint that to her. I only stammered aimlessly.
"You use the woman's test of a man, let him be loyal in love and he is simply perfect."
"Man himself wrote 'loyalty' on love's standard, and then he handed the banner to woman—to follow alone!" Martha spoke with the bitterness which can grow only in the heart of a wife whose trust has been betrayed. She seemed to address the next sentence to herself as much as to me: "Loyalty! Sometimes I wonder if it is worth while to be loyal to Evan!"

"Martha, darling! You're muttering nonsense, but it sounds ominous enough! My dear! Nothing—at least no man—could ever tempt you to break your marriage vows! No man would dare to try!"
"Hum-um-um-um!" Martha hummed the chord of a scale, her characteristic sign of impatience. "But you ought to watch some of them try! Old men desire to be fathers to me—very respectable old men with grandchildren. And exceedingly respectable young men need the inspiration which I alone can give them. And if married, they need sympathy! They tell me so! But there's no sense in stirring up that slush! Ugh-h! They talk as if I didn't know that they make the same kind of love to any handsome woman who happens to be handy!"
"Oh la la! I murmured. Never before had Martha spoken so frankly to me. I perceived that her samples of experience as acquired by a pretty woman in the business world would be, if I could get her to confess them, a lot more thrilling than fiction.
"But the man who has just left this room is different! Oh, quite different from all the others!"
Every girl says that about some man, sometime!
Evidently I was not to confuse Arthur Mansfield with the common herd!

I couldn't help giggling, rather hysterically.
"Martha, I don't see how even this 'different' specimen of his sex can keep from making love to you!" It was an impertinent speech, but girls who are real friends are often as frank. "You're so pretty, Martha! How you manage to ward off all the tempters is a mystery to me!"
"You talk just like a man! You expect me to do the absurd!" exclaimed the most beautiful girl I have ever known. "Can't a pretty girl have a will?"

Miss Eleanor Schneider, a teacher in the Fifth ward, returned Wednesday to her home in Mattoon, Wis., for the summer vacation. She will return here next September.

An order has been issued by the police and fire commission to the police and fire departments prohibiting any member of the force from engaging in any work for which pay is received, during their "off" days. This will affect several men who have taken outside employment to augment their incomes.
It is said that the order followed a protest from labor unions concerning certain forms of work done by firemen in spare time which deprived union members of employment.

Appleton Gets Overflow From Eagle Convention
Appleton has been taking care of the overflow from the state convention of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, which is in progress at Menasha. A carload of delegates came over bright and early Thursday morning and invaded local barbershops to obtain a shave. The shops in Menasha had more than they could handle.
Others were unable to find satisfactory restaurant facilities in Menasha, so have been coming to local establishments for meals. The hotels here also have accommodated many of the delegates. Some of the visitors are staying with Appleton friends, and spend only enough time in Menasha to attend the convention sessions.

Pliny Earl of Laona, Forest co., who left Appleton 20 years ago, is visiting friends here for the first time in eight years. He is accompanied by his son, and brother Oriu with whom he is engaged in logging business. Mr. Earl says there is nothing doing in the woods this summer owing the bottom having dropped out of the wholesale price of lumber.

Mr. and Mrs. Gaffney of Racine, visited friends here Wednesday.

Confessions of a Bride
(Copyright 1920)
THE BOOK OF MARTHA
Martha Shrinks From Love-Shush
The gossip about Arthur Mansfield had a startling effect upon Martha. She turned her happiest smile upon me and a little thrill of joy rang in her voice.
"I've heard the story, and I guess it's all true! Didn't I tell you that he is the finest man in the wide, wide world?"
Intuitively, I surmised the secret of my friends' rapture. She was glad because he recent caller had buried his heart long ago in the grave of a girl! She was glad because—because Arthur Mansfield ran no danger of falling in love with any living woman! Then—why then—she must be in love with the man! Very much in love, I decided, but I couldn't hint that to her. I only stammered aimlessly.
"You use the woman's test of a man, let him be loyal in love and he is simply perfect."
"Man himself wrote 'loyalty' on love's standard, and then he handed the banner to woman—to follow alone!" Martha spoke with the bitterness which can grow only in the heart of a wife whose trust has been betrayed. She seemed to address the next sentence to herself as much as to me: "Loyalty! Sometimes I wonder if it is worth while to be loyal to Evan!"

"Martha, darling! You're muttering nonsense, but it sounds ominous enough! My dear! Nothing—at least no man—could ever tempt you to break your marriage vows! No man would dare to try!"
"Hum-um-um-um!" Martha hummed the chord of a scale, her characteristic sign of impatience. "But you ought to watch some of them try! Old men desire to be fathers to me—very respectable old men with grandchildren. And exceedingly respectable young men need the inspiration which I alone can give them. And if married, they need sympathy! They tell me so! But there's no sense in stirring up that slush! Ugh-h! They talk as if I didn't know that they make the same kind of love to any handsome woman who happens to be handy!"
"Oh la la! I murmured. Never before had Martha spoken so frankly to me. I perceived that her samples of experience as acquired by a pretty woman in the business world would be, if I could get her to confess them, a lot more thrilling than fiction.
"But the man who has just left this room is different! Oh, quite different from all the others!"
Every girl says that about some man, sometime!
Evidently I was not to confuse Arthur Mansfield with the common herd!

I couldn't help giggling, rather hysterically.
"Martha, I don't see how even this 'different' specimen of his sex can keep from making love to you!" It was an impertinent speech, but girls who are real friends are often as frank. "You're so pretty, Martha! How you manage to ward off all the tempters is a mystery to me!"
"You talk just like a man! You expect me to do the absurd!" exclaimed the most beautiful girl I have ever known. "Can't a pretty girl have a will?"

Miss Eleanor Schneider, a teacher in the Fifth ward, returned Wednesday to her home in Mattoon, Wis., for the summer vacation. She will return here next September.

An order has been issued by the police and fire commission to the police and fire departments prohibiting any member of the force from engaging in any work for which pay is received, during their "off" days. This will affect several men who have taken outside employment to augment their incomes.
It is said that the order followed a protest from labor unions concerning certain forms of work done by firemen in spare time which deprived union members of employment.

TEST BODY FINDS 90-POUND COW IN DALE MAN'S HERD

Dale and Hortonville Testing Association Has 54 High Producers.

May tests of the Dale and Hortonville Cow Testing association revealed that Arnold Roessler has a grade Holstein, Mabel, that outclasses almost any animal in the county. Her record for the month was 90.7 pounds of butter fat, fully 30 pounds more than any other cow in the association. She made this record from a milk flow of 1,440 pounds testing 6.3 per cent fat.

This is believed to be the first time any cow in this county made such a high record. It is more than twice as much as many cows produce and three times the record of others. Requiring only as much feed and care as any other cow, Mabel pours real dollars of profit into the coffers of her owner.

so had cows at the top of the list. Bessie, a grade Guernsey owned by the former produced 64.6 pounds of butter fat from a milk flow of 1,296 pounds. Griswold's grade Holstein, Doll, produced 63.2 pounds of butter fat from 1,110 pounds of milk. His grade Holstein, Cupid, had a record of 61.2 and 1.275.

Herd honors went to Clair Earl, whose 11 cows averaged 1,125 pounds of milk and 40.1 pounds of butter fat. R. R. Griswold came second with 15 cows producing an average of 855 pounds of milk each cow for 30 days, testing 37.9 pounds of butter fat.

Fifty-four cows were above the 40-pound butter mark in the tests made by O. A. Minarek, official tester. Twelve were above 50 pounds. Below are the records of all cows above 40 pounds:

CONDITIONS WORSE IN EAST THAN HERE

Hackbert Describes Southern Hospitality at Telegraphers' Meeting.

"The southern and eastern people are a great deal worse off than we are," said P. L. Hackbert, who with Mrs. Hackbert and sons Harlan and Junior have just returned from a four weeks' trip to Savannah, Ga., and along the Atlantic coast. "They have been out of employment so long they are willing to do any kind of work at any wages," he said.

Mr. Hackbert attended the international convention of telegraphers, train dispatchers and station agents and like the other 800 delegates from all parts of the United States, Canada and Panama took his family with him. The total number of visitors was close to 1,500.

"It takes southern people to entertain," said Mr. Hackbert. "Their hospitality cannot be approached in any other part of the country. The key to the city was turned over to us by the mayor the moment we arrived and there was something planned for us every minute we were there."

"All the visitors were taken out to Tybee beach, the Atlantic City of the south, where they enjoyed a dip in salt water. We were also given a day's trip on the ocean in a palatial steamer. In heading for the ocean we passed a lightship where we were given a signal by a woman nearly 60 years old, who for the last 40 years has never permitted a vessel to pass night or day without waving to it."

"The story told us was of a pathetic nature. She is the daughter of the lighthouse keeper and it appeared that when a young maiden she had a lover who was lost at sea. She waved him goodbye as his vessel passed the lighthouse and crazed with grief him mind became deranged and she still continues to wave to every passing vessel."

"The only thing that marred the pleasure of the convention was an accident that caused the injury of about two dozen delegates several of whom had their legs fractured and were removed to a hospital. The accident was due to a platform giving away while they were having their photograph taken. I had a hunch the platform was not safe and kept away from it."

In returning home Mr. Hackbert came by way of Jacksonville, Richmond, Philadelphia, Washington, New York and Niagara Falls. "The condition of the people at Philadelphia," said Mr. Hackbert, "is particularly bad. The heads of families are out of employment and in many instances the families are being supported by the mothers who go out scrubbing and washing."

"I have a relative who runs a dairy near Philadelphia who during the war paid his men $70 a week. He can now get more men than he can use for $18 a week. The demand for dairy products has dropped to almost nothing for the reason the majority of people have no funds with which to purchase them. The Atlantic fleet was in New York harbor at the time we were there and attracted thousands of visitors."

Miss Daisy Ingold leaves Thursday for Detroit, Mich., on her way to England, where she will spend her summer vacation with relatives. At Detroit she will be the guest for two days of her brother.

German Government Is Trying To Pay Its Bills

No Chance for Economic Rehabilitation Until France Has the Security Which She Feels She Needs.

BY COL. E. M. HOUSE

Copyright, 1921, by Public Ledger Co.
Berlin—The crux of immediate problems which the world war has entailed has to do with finance and economics and the heart of the situation lies here in Germany. Upon Germany's ability to continue as a going concern, the contentment and prosperity of many peoples depend. There is a marked difference of opinion here concerning this. There are those who believe Germany has been so crippled by the war and the terms of peace that she cannot meet the demands made and to be made upon her. Her population has been reduced roughly from sixty-seven millions to fifty millions, her territory ment intends to pay if it is within German capacity to do so. In many ways the present government is the sanest and safest Germany has had since the war and it would be well for all concerned if it should continue in power with a more substantial backing in the Reichstag in order to solve problems with which the country is confronted.

One of the great difficulties with which the continental parliamentary system has to contend is constant change of ministers. It would be impossible for governments to properly function were it not for the staff of permanent officials who remain in the departments. Even so there is a constant change in policy which brings no feeling of security. Great Britain with practically the same system is slower to change and is given a stabilization of government seldom found on the continent. One reason for the difference is the growing of clipped of about twenty-five thousand square miles, her economic strength reduced by the loss of iron mines in Lorraine and the coal fields in the Saar valley and upper Silesia.

To meet the expenses of armies of occupation to pay the annual installments for reparations, and to meet her own budget for governmental requirements are to pessimists of Germany an impossible task. The domestic budget is in itself a formidable obstacle to financial rehabilitation.

Before the war the railroads employed some seven hundred fifty thousand men. With the mileage reduced because of reduction of territory the present number of employees should be if estimated on the pre-war basis something like six hundred fifty thousand. As a matter of fact the number has grown to more than a million, thus not alone because of shorter working hours but largely because of the necessity of keeping down the number of unemployed. Fear of revolution, Bolshevism and kindred ills has made this necessary.

This is the black side of the picture. Present government groups believe that the tasks before Germany are not insuperable. If Silesia is retained, if no further occupation of territory is made and if the entente will lessen somewhat the export tax, it is thought a way out may be found. The fact that Walter Rathenau has been willing to accept the office as minister of reconstruction gives color to the belief that the present government is generally believed that the Wirth ministry would welcome a rapprochement with France. Many Germans think there can be no rehabilitation of Europe until this comes about.

There are far sighted Germans who welcome a guaranty by the United States and Great Britain to come to France's aid in the event of an unwarranted attack by Germany. That they believe would give France security which she demands and which she is trying to obtain by other methods—methods which make impossible a conciliatory economic or political peace.

Cut Milk Price.

Editor, Post-Crescent—I would like to know how much the retailer would charge the consumer for a quart of milk if the farmer would make him a present of it. In Appleton he probably would charge 8 1/2 cents a quart. Now the farmer is getting only about 1 1/2 cents a quart for milk and here in Appleton dealers are charging 10 cents a quart. I think it is time for the people to wake up. There are a lot of poor children looking for a glass of milk, but their parents are out of work and the retailer is charging 10 cents a quart. It is a shame.

The farmer feeds his cows all the year, must hire men to help him till the soil to raise feed enough to keep these cows and to help him milk them and then gets only 1 1/2 cents a quart. He has from twelve to fifteen thousand dollars invested. The retailer has little money invested and gets 8 1/2 cents profit. It is too much compared with what the average farmer gets for his milk. I hope there will be a change soon. Either the farmer should get more or the retailer get less.

CHEESE FACTORIES RUSHED WITH WORK

N. Simon Cheese Co. at Appleton Junction is one of the few manufacturing plants in Fox river valley that is not feeling the effects of the business depression. It was never more rushed with orders and has just put on a night crew in order to keep up with its business.

"The cheese factories of the county are now in the flush of the season," said N. L. Simon, secretary and treasurer, "and all are running at full capacity. The market price of cheese is 12 1/2 cents per pound today as compared with 2 1/2 cents a year ago. The demand for cheese is exceptionally good. Our plant is now running night and day. All the creameries in the county are also in operation. The demand for butter is much greater than a year ago because of its low price."

"Approximately the same quantity of milk is being produced in the county as last year. Prices are now at pre-war level and the demand for cheese and butter at these prices is normal."

INGROWN TOE NAIL TURNS OUT ITSELF

A few drops of "Outgro" upon the skin surrounding the ingrown nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night. "Outgro" is a harmless, antiseptic, manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

DARLING BABY BRIGHTENS HOME

Children's Laughter a Pleasing Sound

Altoona, Pa.—"I am writing to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. We had six children die almost at birth. From one hour to nineteen days is all they have lived. Before my next one was born I took a dozen bottles of your Vegetable Compound, and I can say that it is the greatest medicine on earth, for this baby is now four months old, and a healthier baby you would not want. I am sending you a picture of her. Everybody says 'That is a very healthy looking baby.' You have my consent to show these few lines to anybody."—Mrs. C. W. BENZ, 131 3rd Avenue, Altoona, Pa.

Mrs. Janssen's experience of interest to childless wives. Millston, Wis.—"I want to give you a word of praise for your wonderful medicine. We are fond of children, and for a considerable time after we were married I feared I would not have any. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it strengthened me so I now have a nice, strong, healthy baby girl. I suffered very little at childbirth, and I give the credit to your medicine, and shall always recommend it highly."—Mrs. H. H. JANSSEN, Millston, Wis.

Mrs. Held of Marinette, Wis., adds her testimonial for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She says:

Marinette, Wis.—"I was in a nervous condition and very irregular. My doctor advised an operation. My husband brought me one of your booklets and asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It overcame my weakness so that I now have a healthy baby girl after having been married nine years. I am glad to recommend your medicine, and you may use my letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. H. B. HELD, 330 Jefferson St., Marinette, Wis.

There are many, many such homes that were once childless, and are now blessed with healthy, happy children because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored the mother to a strong and healthy condition, as it acts as a natural restorative for ailments as indicated by backache, irregularities, displacements, weakness and nervousness.

Women everywhere should remember that most of the commoner ailments of women are not the surgical ones—they are not caused by serious displacements or growths, although the symptoms may be the same, and that is why so many apparently serious ailments readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it acts as a natural restorative. It can be taken with perfect safety and often prevents serious troubles.

Therefore if you know of any woman who is suffering and has been unable to secure relief and is regretfully looking forward to a childless old age, ask her to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it has brought health and happiness into so many homes once darkened by illness and despair.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent to you free upon request. Write to The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information.

OLD CHINA MELTS AWAY AS NEW IDEAS ARE TAKING HOLD

Changes in Mode of Living and in Government Are Most Astounding.

BY CHARLES EDWARD RUSSELL.
Copyright, 1921, by Post Pub. Co.
Peking. "In China," says a wise old American, many years resident in that country, "the Chinese government proceeds from bottom up, in Japan it proceeds from top down. The Japanese don't see this difference; nineteen in twenty of the other foreigners don't see it. But it is the fact, nevertheless, the biggest fact in the situation and will some day settle it. No matter what else you may hear, stick to this, that the people of China are the only real source of power here, and they are going to get what they want. They may not get it right off the reel, but they will get it."

Certainly, this agrees with every thing that I have seen and is the only key that will fit every part of the problem. If then it is true that the old China of tradition, the China that never changed, China the hard-baked product of centuries of one habit of thought, if that China is dissolving and a new China is taking its place, I should think that gentlemen like those of Great Britain who count on the permanent return of monarchy and the good old days of privilege, might be in for a jolt.

As to this we may now profitably consider a few facts like these:

1. It has always been said of these Chinese people that they would not work together, had no sense of co-operation, and so that you could kick them in the face at Hong Kong or Wanchow or Shanghai and none of the rest of them would care a rap. Everybody said this, everybody believed it, and doubtless the same notion was strong upon Japan when it presented Twenty-one Demands, which were as hard a kick in the face as any nation ever endured.

The flaccid or crooked Chinese administration received it with meekness and when Japan, pistol in hand, said "Sign on the dotted line," signed with neatness and dispatch. But will you kindly observe what the people did about it? They didn't recognize any of this bunk, but of their own motion and without leadership, without even any advice or suggestion from their press, they started the word and passed it around to boycott Japanese goods, and the next thing Japan knew it couldn't sell five cents' worth of anything anywhere in China. Japanese merchants and exporters were caught with millions of dollars worth of stuff they could do nothing with. People would not have it for a gift.

The movement swept all China, swept it with a swiftness that considering the poor means of communication seems astounding. No matter how much folks might be divided about North and South they were of one mind about this. Japan complained and protested and the administration ordered under heavy penalty the removal of the notices "Boycott Japanese Goods" that adorned so many walls. Forthwith (in some places) under the eyes of the police, down came the notices. But they were succeeded by others that read "Boycott Inferior Goods" which to the Chinese mind meant exactly the same thing. On went the boycott exactly as before and was one of the causes of the business panic that hit Japan so hard last fall.

2. If there were anything better settled than another about the Chinese it was that they could not exist without gambling. The Chinese character demanded it; the Chinese government had always legitimized it. But one of the first things the new government at Canton did was to close all the gambling houses and there is now no public gambling in Canton. Even that great and famous house on the river front, so long familiar in the sight of visitors by river—closed tight as a safe and boarded up, as a photograph in my possession attests. Some nerve was required for this reform because the government receipts from the gambling houses were goodly and the incomes of former administrators had left the cash box empty. But the houses were closed, nevertheless, and remained closed.

And the people approved. 3. One of the innovations in Canton is an excellent street railroad system. Imagine street cars in Rabbit Warren Canton, you glimpse of other days! After a time women were employed as conductors and in other capacities, and successfully. While I was in Canton one of the incidents of a day was the appearance of all the women conductors and the rest in a body before the office of the company with a demand for an eight-hour day and some other concessions. And when they were argued with about this, they said, Well, that was what

MARSHAL FOCH MAY BE IN STATE IN NOVEMBER

Wisconsin people may have an opportunity to see and hear Marshal Foch, noted Frenchman who led the Allied forces to victory in the World war. Milwaukee is assembling its various organizations to extend an invitation to the noted officer to visit this city when he makes his tour of the United States in November. If he accepts the invitation it is probable that many Appleton people will go to Milwaukee to attend the reception.

their working sisters in other countries of the world were getting and what they were going to have in Canton.

"Can we really bank very far on an unchangeable China if this is the fact?"

4. When the school teachers struck the other day against the Northern government they struck not in one place but in all places and not pullulantly but all together. We have even had instances of the strikes of pupils supported by their parents and spreading by some magic free masonry impossible without the sense of solidarity.

Canton is not the only Chinese city that is undergoing transformation. At Foochow and Shanghai and elsewhere you will see demonstrations of the same purpose. From a strictly artistic point of view, New Peking has been surpassed by Canton. And will you look at the change in Peking itself in the last fifteen years?

5. The Peking administration has been trying to get up some kind of an election for its so-called parliament. Somebody or somebody in the mass of the people no leader, no preconceived idea that this election would be fraudulent and insignificant; and started the idea that it should be boycotted. I think it a fact of utmost moment that the people considered "this suggestion, found it good and are now carrying it out to the consternation of the government, which has been trying to save its face by postponing the date of the voting, and putting forth every effort to get out of the voters. It may well be alarmed, the outsider, anyway, will think that nothing could be more ominous.

6. It used to be said that the Chinese had no national feeling, the only place you ever saw a Chinese flag was on a government vessel or building and most of the people did not know there was such a thing. Today you can see the flag of the republic floating over thousands of dwellings and stores in city, town and village. You can even hear an occasional band experimenting with the new national hymn.

7. All this time Wu Peifu is slowly gathering his democratic army in Hunan, his army of students, for while he teaches them arms he teaches them no less the history and theory of democracy and the rudiments of an education. In the view of many this is the coming man of North China and apparently the people are turning toward him as their eventual leader. Please note that he is the sternest democrat in China.

8. Back of everything else is the steady pressure of the American idea, for, as I told you before, it is America that has inspired all this. In every Chinese city the students returned from American universities and ardent with new ideals are the core and nucleus of an indomitable progressivism. But beyond even their ceaseless activities and influence towers to the Chinese mind the example of one nation which has never exploited China, has stolen no Chinese territory, worked no swindling railroad concessions here, played no tricks, tried to sell no opium and is at the same time a nation where the government is the will of the people. It is the power of these ideas that has made what there is of New China and I can see no reason to think it will stop where it is, having the more faith in it when I stop to remember the character and worth of the people on whom it is working.

Therefore, the present day conditions may be as bad as the worst representation of them they are, after all, only superficial, the froth and ferment boiling to the top. There never was a revolution on earth that was not followed by these manifestations. Nor one in which they did not subside into the ways of rational progress. Nor one that went backward.

It will be so in Russia, it will be so in China, it will be so everywhere in the good time of inevitable processes.

Help That Aching Back

Is your back giving out? Are you tired, miserable, all run down; tortured with nagging backache, lameness and sudden, stabbing pains? If so, look to your kidneys. Overwork, hurry and worry tend to weaken the kidneys. Backache and an all worn out feeling is often the first warning. Get back your health while you can. Use Doan's Kidney Pills, the remedy Appleton folks recommend. Ask your neighbor.

Here's an Appleton Case
Albert McAlister, retired farmer, 1025 Onondaga-st., says: "I was bothered with backache, and when I stooped over I couldn't straighten up. Sharp pains bothered me constantly and made it hard for me to do anything. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and in three days' time the backache had disappeared and I could do my work as well as ever." adv.

Farmers Can't Buy With No Market For Products

Drop in Prices of Machinery Did Not Bring Expected Revival of Sales.

Prices on farm machinery have dropped 10 to 20 per cent within the last few weeks, yet local dealers say this has had little effect in stimulating sales. With prices of farm products the lowest in years and no market for many commodities, the farmer has no money to spend for new equipment.

Better marketing methods would relieve the situation and enable the farmer to return to better times, it is believed. The whole depression would be over with and employment plentiful if the farming industry was placed on its feet.

"Prices on our machines have get as much money as they can, and as long as the consumer is willing to pay, the merchant is satisfied to let present prices remain. When the people, together and demand lower prices, then prices will come down."

"There has been a drop in prices of agricultural machinery of 20 per cent," said Charles Schroeder of Outagamie Equity exchange, "but sales have decreased 50 per cent."

"How can we expect the farmer to buy when he has no market for his own products? He gets 4 cents for undressed beef and 78 cents a hundred pounds for milk. A lot of young farmers are using up what surplus funds they have for operating expenses. This money will disappear in a short time. How is he then to make payments on his farm? If this condition continues for a time, the farmer will be bankrupt and the country thrown into famine."

Mr. Schroeder believes all commodities could reach the consumer by a more direct route, and the overhead expense thus greatly reduced. "Equity exchanges are a step in this direction," he said, "but due to lack of experience in operation they have succeeded only partially. In a short time we hope to have our organizations so perfected that they will be permanent markets for all farm products."

It is the equity man's belief that the present depression is a result of the farmers' limited buying power. The farmer will be able to buy as soon as he is able to sell his products at a profit. The manufacturer then will have a market for his goods and the laborer can get work.

COMET WILL BE VISIBLE TO ASTRONOMERS JUNE 26

June 26 there will be a new spectacle in sky, which, if viewed through a powerful telescope will prove to be the Pons-Winnecke comet. Astronomers say that if atmospheric conditions are right and the comet moves at the rate of speed estimated, it will be in plain view on that date. Few citizens will get a look at it or show any interest, but astronomers will eagerly seek the comet on that evening.

CUT IN SALARIES WILL MEAN ACUTE TEACHER FAMINE

Superintendent Meating Denounces Movements to Reduce Wage Level.

That the movement now being instituted in some quarters to reduce teachers' wages is unwise and inopportune is the belief of Arthur G. Meating, county superintendent of schools, who forecasts an even greater shortage of teachers next year than has confronted the public school system for the last two years.

"There are no indications," said Mr. Meating, that there will be more applicants for teachers' positions this year than there have been in the last two or three years. The truth is there are many indications that there will be fewer teachers next year. I notice too, that many experienced teachers are reticent about signing next year contracts at this time.

Every druggist in this county is authorized to say to every rheumatic sufferer that if two bottles of Allenrhu, the sure conqueror of rheumatism, does not stop all agony, reduce swollen joints and do away with even the slightest twinge of rheumatic pain, he will gladly return your money without comment.

Allenrhu has been tried and tested for years, and really marvelous results have been accomplished in the most severe cases where the suffering and agony was intense and pitious and where the patient was helpless.

Mr. James H. Allen, the discoverer of Allenrhu, who for many years suffered the torments of acute rheumatism, desires all sufferers to know that he does not want a cent of anyone's money unless Allenrhu decisively conquers this worst of all diseases, and he has instructed Schilz Bros., Voigt's Drug Store and Union Pharmacy to guarantee it in every instance.

has not suffered as great a shortage of teachers as neighboring counties. This is because our salaries last year averaged $110 per month, or an individual increase of from $5 to $20 per month per school. Neighboring counties have paid salaries averaging appreciably less and teachers who have gone from this county have had intentions of returning here next fall. Should a general reduction of wages occur in our schools it is probable they would change their minds about coming back.

"For this reason, I consider it foolish and absurd that any one should attempt to start a general cut in salaries. Those who are trying to start the movement are the old reactionaries of the county. I wonder if those who wish to cut the teacher's salary would also be willing to board her for less money. I know one rural teacher who has been paying $34 per month for board. Then she was getting comparatively little accommodation and only stayed from Monday morning until Friday night of each week.

"It is quite easy to drive good teachers out of a community but it is a hard task to induce them to come in. I fear that schools will go begging if

Appleton Machine Company
Gets Favorable Decision
in T. R. Hayton Case.

Appleton Machine company won a victory in circuit court Wednesday when Judge E. V. Werner decided that the company need not pay a sum of more than $50,000 claimed by the plaintiff. The case was tried last January and the verdict has been under consideration since that date.

Judgment also was given Appleton Machine company against Mr. Hayton for approximately $500, representing moneys borrowed by the latter.

The case dates back to 1918 when Mr. Hayton began acting as agent for Appleton Machine company. He alleged he had an agreement with the company for a copartnership in the manufacture of pumps. These were to be made according to a new centrifugal pump design which Mr. Hayton said would give a great deal more efficiency than any others.

Testimony showed that Appleton Machine company made a preliminary agreement with Mr. Hayton to test out his theories. He was discharged by the company, it was said, because he could not do what he claimed. Mr. Hayton then brought suit for amounts approximating more than $50,000 for net income, salary and damages due him.

The company denied that any partnership had been formed; that the plaintiff merely been hired and his pumps were alleged to be useless. Judge Werner's decision was in favor of the defendant on every question. Claude G. Cannon appeared for the plaintiff and F. S. Bradford for the defendant.

THE STAGE
Pola Negri Great.
It would seem that the unexpected can happen in screenland as well as in the other and older realms of the amusement world. Producers and exhibitors in this country are known to look coldly upon costume dramas, doubly so upon those of foreign make. In the face of this, the First National has imported a picture from Europe dealing with the life and times of Jeanne Marie Vanbarnier, better known as the Countess Du Barry, the celebrated favorite of the notorious Louis XV.

One point should be made clear: It is as romance and not history that "Passion" triumphs. Its historical background has great interest of its own and should add materially to the drawing power of the picture, but it is the love story of Jeanne and Armand de Foix and the part the King of France played in the destiny of these two beings of humble birth that will win most of the photodrama's popularity. This—and the acting of Pola Negri as the woman best known as the Countess Du Barry!—It is impossible to speak in too great praise of this foreign artiste's embodiment of Jeanne.

As an authentic pictorial record of the life of the Countess Du Barry, whose romantic career is one of the best known in all history, "Passion" will take its place as a screen classic.

ELEVEN ARRESTED IN APPLETON FOR "FLIPPING" CARS

Railroad Detectives Make Wholesale Arrests to Stop Dangerous Practice.

Determined to put an end to the practice of flipping cars and "riding the blinds," Detectives P. N. Whisnant and J. W. Blue of the Chicago and Northwestern railway, arrested nine Appleton young men and two from Kenosha Wednesday night with the aid of the police department. All were confined in jail overnight and appeared in court Thursday morning, charged with a misdemeanor for being on railway company property.

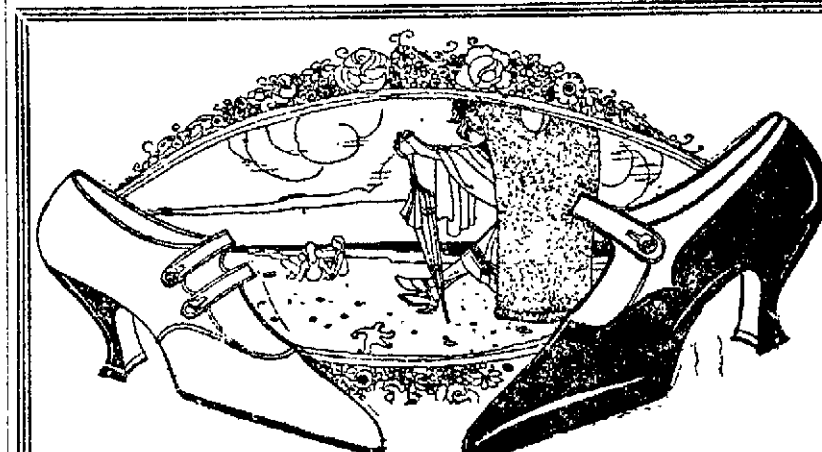

The Appleton youths were Earl Whirly, 21, Julius Snider, 21, Leo Arndt, 21, Raymond Riley, 17, 537 Washington-st., Alvin Boehm, 18, 1016 Packard-st., D. W. Schumacker, 19, Andrew Merkel, 18, 403 Walnut-st., Nelson Delfosse, 17, 1304 Eighth-st., and Lawrence Newland, 18, 407 Outagamie-st. The Kenosha men were William Chufos, 28, and Dominick Sole, 37.

"We have been run to death with car flippers between here and Fond du Lac," said Detective Whisnant, "and will arrest everybody we catch so we can put a stop to this practice. We drove 35 men off one train near Fond du Lac several days ago."

"The company is doing this for the good of these men themselves. We have many cases of accident and some deaths because these chaps attempt to steal a ride, and it is a matter of safety to stop them. Only a few days ago a young man got his foot caught and would have been dragged all the way from Fond du Lac to Oshkosh if his shoe had not given way and released him."

Arraigned in the higher branch of municipal court Thursday morning before Judge A. M. Spencer, the eleven offenders pleaded guilty and were fined $1.50 with a threat of more severe punishment if the offense is repeated. Eight were unable to pay their fines and were given until Monday morning to settle.

ORDERS HIM TO PAY NOTES GIVEN BANK

Hortonville Bank Wins Case Involving Sale of Canning Factory Stock.

Payment of notes, in the sum of $1,000 given by John A. Baum to Farmers and Merchants bank, Hortonville, was ordered in circuit court Thursday morning when a jury found for the plaintiff in the case of Farmers and Merchants bank vs. Baum. The case was heard Wednesday and Thursday before Judge E. V. Werner. The case involved the sale of $1,000 worth of preferred stock by Hortonville Canning company to Mr. Baum. Defendant gave his notes in payment for the stock and these were discounted by the bank. Baum then refused to pay the notes when they became due, alleging that the canning company obtained them through misrepresentation of the condition of its affairs.

Suit was brought by the bank to recover on the notes and the jury decided in favor of the plaintiff, stipulating that notes and interest must be paid. The decision was based on the argument that defendant failed to show that there was any fraud on the part of the canning company, F. S. Bradford appeared for the plaintiff and Rooney and Grogan for the defendant.

JACK IS NERVOUS.
CARP IS COOL AS THEY GET IN SHAPE

Corbett Believes Carpenter Is in Better Condition Than Dempsey.

Between now and the afternoon of June 11, Dempsey and Georges Carpentier will undergo a mental struggle. This is the
"No Man's Land"
of boxing through which all champions and challengers pass.

It is going to be a fight between the
"Big Boy" and the "Frenchman" who has been called the
"most nervous heavyweight champion I ever knew," says
Corbett.

And Corbett's confidence in Sullivan has been all over and for the past 39 years Dempsey is the hunted now, not the hunter as at Toledo two years ago.

"He has everything it takes Carp is cool.

"Carpenter who is not nervous is a cool calculating fellow. He presses me as a better fighter than Dempsey. He is a cool head and between now and the time of the fighting out plans of attack on the champion.

"Of the old champions I think Jeffries and Wilard were the more nervous during training. They were big fellows and didn't wobble their friends by fancy dancing with sparring partners.

Sullivan was the aggressive nervous type. He was a worker and earned a braggadocio mannerism of supreme confidence.

"Fitzsimmons and Johnson were nervous types. They never showed a "training couch" outwardly. They covered up by kidding their friends.

"I was always a cool as during the long training days. But the tension left me the minute I climbed into the ring for the fight. As a fighter, I seemed to pass over me and left me cool and calm.

Dempsey All Nerves.
"Dempsey enters the ring with his fists with a more cool look on his face.
This is a sign that he is a fighter who he always grows prior to a battle.

"Carpenter wears more of a searching expression, but his expression has been a search for the champion.
The Frenchman's all business of course, nobody knows what tactics Carpenter will adopt against Dempsey.

"There is only one way to fight a man who hits with Dempsey's steam.
It is the hit and get away style until the opening comes where you can put all your power into your knockout punch.

And Carpenter can hit too as his record shows.

"It's my opinion that Dempsey has a fight on his hands this time."

KIMBERLY SHIFTS
TEAM TO WALLOP
BRANDTS SUNDAY

Lamers Will Play Second Base and Sylvester Seeks
New Pitcher.

When Kimberly meets Appleton on the former's diamond next Sunday it will present the strongest front of the year according to Manager Harry Sylvester of the Kimberly team who is utilizing every spare minute to organize a winning machine.

Sylvester is making special effort to strengthen his outfield. For this reason he is shifting some of his strongest men. Loe, who has been holding the second base, will be in the outfield when the Brandts line up next Sunday. Marty Lamers former pitcher will fill the position vacated by Loe. Then will man third and Sylvester first. Cavel will hold an outpost as will also Peters of Little Chino.

Peters is a new man with a reputation for slugging the ball and Sylvester is congratulating himself upon securing the new aspirant whom he believes will be a genuine asset to the team.

The new arrangement leaves the team without a hurler but the manager is certain a worthy man will be found to hold down the rubber next Sunday and remaining games.

Paul Jorgensen, schoolmaster and ball pitcher was released by the White Sox this spring and only recently he turned in a no hit game while hurrying in the Iowa pushes against a Wisconsin team. It could be seen that Jorgensen pulled a better when he led the can to schoolmaster.
One thing is sure Jorgensen could be any worse than some of the supposed-to-be mound articles who are taking a turn on the slab for the Darned Hose.

And Tony Gibbons continues to knock 'em. The last game St. Paul heavy weight scored his tenth consecutive knockout at Omaha when he put the skids under Willie Keeler.
The Twin City man's swifter looks like real championship material and it would be surprising if the winner of the Dempsey-Carpenter scrap will have to fight the Minnesota Irishman. Gibbons is looking better at every start and what's more he is battling on weight despite his strenuous schedule of hectic encounters.

Eabe Ruth's one day sentence in a New York prison was more of a farce than anything else but nevertheless the King of Swat proved he was taught a lesson that he won't forget in a long while. For the next few weeks, Babe will have to stand an awful riding from the brachettes and before his over with, we'll bet that the Yankee outfielder will be mighty sorry that he ever stepped on her and put a few dents in the Gotham traffic laws.

Pacific coast collegians cleaned up their own errands in football and track and now a Golden West aggregation of tennis players is meeting with very little opposition in the middle west on the court. The Island Stanford boys have walked all over the tracks of this part of the country and so far the invaders have won all their matches on the transcontinental tour. The California re-tard's seem to be in a class by themselves so far as intercollegiate tennis honors are concerned.

Local golfers are shunning up their sticks and practicing swinging for the opening match of the Riverview Country Club's summer tournament, which is to be held on the Appleton greens Saturday, June 11. A trophy cup will be awarded the winner.

All men of the club will be eligible for the event and will play in handicap. The new rules on penalties for out-of-bounds shots and lost balls will be in force. A copy of these rules will be posted at the club. Arrangements will be made later for a ladies' tournament.

The year book of the club has been compiled and will be off the press in a few days. It will contain the season's complete schedule.

King Hornsby Out For 400 Year

His Batting Hands His Fielding Hands

Rogers Hornsby, the boy king of the National League batsmen in 1920, is out for a 400 year.

Hornsby is again leading the league with his batting hands and he is performing as brilliantly as ever at second base with his fielding hands.

On June 3 his slugging record was 411, just 41 points above the mark with which he won the batting crown last season.

And usually Hornsby does not do his best batting in the spring, when the pitching is bad.

Hornsby hits best against the best pitching.

Good Start
"I've got a good start this year. It has always been my ambition to pound out a season average of 400 or better. Perhaps this will be my year.

"Usually I make a poor start. I lay that to bad pitching in the first few weeks of the spring.

"I like good pitching. Bad pitching bothers me.

"To my mind you can figure a good pitcher better than a poor one. He has control. He is playing the game.
He knows the game.

"I like to hit the ball on a straight line.

"When you hit it square it travels that way and it will usually go for extra bases.

"I don't think slugging is a matter of weight.

"The bat I use weighs only 42 ounces. It is easily handled.

"The eye counts most in connecting squarely with the ball.

"If you meet the ball exactly right it will travel like a bullet.

"If you hit it off center the ball won't travel nearly so far nor so fast."

Hornsby is not a big man. He weighs only 165 pounds. He was 25 in April.

He bats right-handed and has a free, easy motion when swinging.

Apparently he doesn't put much snap into his hitting, but in reality his gracefulness covers up the power he is really exerting.

The offer of $200,000 and four players, the equivalent of $300,000, made by the Giants last winter for him has not turned the Cardinal star's head.

He plays brilliantly because he has his heart in every game and because he owns an almost perfect pair of batting and fielding hands and a set of wonderful eyes.

SCRIBES MINGLE

Frenchman's Private Workouts
Show Regular Defense Against Left Jab.

By Jack McAuliffe
By United Press Leased Wire
Manhasset, L. I.—This Carpenter isn't such a "sucker" for a left as he wants the experts to believe. I saw him work out in private Wednesday but he didn't know it. I was mingling with a bunch of cows on top of a hill adjacent to his pasture ring.

The Frenchman confined his two rounds with the big Journee almost entirely to defensive work and the burly sparring mate could not come near him with a left.

Of course I'm not saying that Journee is so good he ought to land when he wants to, but he had been getting his lefts across in the public workouts Carpenter evidently wanted it to appear in print and get to Dempsey that he was wide open to anything from the port side.

The Frenchman put a lot more in his work than he does on "newspaper days." He seemed far more serious and went at his work with more genuine interest.

Thursday Carpenter was to enter the scribes again with the ancient Joe Jeannette as his chief victim. Joe is always the victim of the public workouts, perhaps against him Carpenter can get over just what he desires to get in print. I have come to the conclusion that his public work doesn't mean a thing and that we can't get a line on his ability from any close range. Unless Descampes posts guards out in the trees and bushes on the hill we can see his private workouts but you can't see very much from that distance.

When Descampes cut the public work down to two days a week and said his best needed more private work, I thought he was just joking but it seems he wasn't. The Frenchman is working hard four days a week.

DEFER CHANGES IN VOTING DISTRICTS

Madison—Reapportionment of congressional districts will not be attempted at this session of the legislature. This decision was reached by the reapportionment committee Tuesday night after Chairman Claude B.
Bird had received a telegram from Congressman James Frear stating it was impossible to predict what congress would do relative to increasing its membership.

"We have decided against attempting reapportionment," said Chairman Claude Bird, "because we could not guess what congress will do. If congress acts before the session is over, the committee may undertake to re-district the state."

Congressman Frear wired on behalf of eight members of the eleven representing Wisconsin in congress. The delegation was not in favor of immediate action on reapportionment.

comfort of a soft collar.

You'll find a change to soft collars refreshingly comfortable, especially if you change to our non-wrinklable

Shares Prosperity With His Workers

Famous Tire Manufacturer Gives His 10,000 Workers Chance to Buy Stock.

Special to Post-Crescent
Akron, O.—"If a man doesn't help put something into the other fellow's pocket he will never have very much to put into his own."

This is the philosophy that has enabled every one of the 10,000 or more employees of one of the world's largest rubber companies to become stockholders in the concern, controlling to day approximately 45,000 shares of the common stock.

It is the philosophy of Harvey S. Firestone, president of the tire company which bears his name.

Just 20 years ago Firestone rented a small wooden building, got together a force of 17 people and started to manufacture tires.
